EDITING A NEWSPAPER.

There is one editor who has achieved the feat of running a newspaper to suit everybody. Occasionally, to be sure, he has complaints, but he never fails to satisfy the complainants that they are in the wrong. It was not always so with him. He only adopted the system after he grew desperate. It was one day after he received seven complaints that he tried it. A man came and said:

"Why in Tophet didn't you print the whole of the proceedings of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Hogs, instead of a brief extract?"

The editor replied: "Oh, you made a speech that wasn't in the report, eh?"

Then he went around the counter.
The dust flew for a few moments and then it became more quiet. The editor relaxed his grip on the man's throat sufficiently to let him speak, and he said that he guessed the article was all right, and he had only come in to renew his subscription.
He was let up, paid the money and left, and as he went out he collided with a man who had an ugly glare in his eyes, and who danced up to the editor and said:

"What d'ye mean, sir? I pay for a sensible newspaper, and here I got a lot of stuff about cruelty to hogs. You ought to be put in jail for printing such rot."

The editor went around the corner again, and again the dust flew, and cries of "Take your teeth from my ear!" "Let go o' my hair!" &c., were heard.

It was fully five minutes before the editor could get the man's coat torn off and put him on the floor with his head in the coal scuttle, but he did it at last. Then he jumped high in the air and sat down upon the man's stomach, and the yell the man gave, echoing in the coal scuttle, sounded awful.

The editor was about to repeat the operation, when the man said:
"We needn't prolong this agony.
Your paper is the best in the world.
It is all right. I'll take it for ten years in advance."

Eight more visitors had the same experience. Then came one the editor couldn't thrash. It was a woman.

"What d'ye mean by publishing fashion articles from a three-year-old magazine?" she asked. "I have made a bonnet according to your directions and it's three years behind the style. Oh! you wretch!
you mean, horrid, insignificant—oh!"

"My dear madame," he said, "you are right. I'm not fit to run a paper. I'll stop it at once." (To a reporter.) John, don't send up any more copy. Write that article saying that this lady was the belle of the ball last night."

"Stop!" she cried. "Your paper is a household treasure. I don't care about the bonnet, and came to ask you to our house to tea tonight."

The editor says he wouldn't drop the rule for anything. Everybody leaves satisfied with his paper.—
